Page 2 5 comments Do you want to take act for a trip? You can find PDF versions of FULL-length ACT practice tests to print and an online practice test here. Also be sure to follow our test-taking tips to get the most out of three hours of ACT exercise testing awesomeness. Online ACT practice test Not ecstatic about printing a full length practice test PDF? There is also an option to take a full-length ACT online. Online practice tests have several advantages. First, you don't need to print multiple pages of a PDF practice test. Secondly, with each section timed your experience will more closely resemble an official test. Third, the test is assessed immediately – you don't need to cross-reference the bubble sheet with an answer sheet. Below are links to PDFs from previous official ACT tests: Use the following answer sheets for all practice tests: Once you've printed and taken an exercise test, you can immediately assess the test using Testive's free mobile assessment app for iOS. Just take a picture of your bubble sheet and, voilà, score! ACT test-taking tips Take the ACT under time-honored conditions Students are time-obsessed under an official ACT administration - they must complete each of the four sections before the allotted time runs out. Altogether, the ACT takes almost three hours to complete and test-takers have an average of just under 50 seconds to answer each question. Thus, students must sharpen an otherwise tedious skill set: sampling endurance. And there is only one way to improve test-taking endurance: to take the test in a time-honored environment. Therefore, it is important that students follow the instructions for time constraints described before each section. Following these instructions will also help produce a score that predicts the results most accurately in an official test seat. An accurate practice test score allows students to put a stake in the ground where they stand today relative to where they want to be. If you score a 23 on a time-lapse practice test today, you'll probably get around a 23 on an official test tomorrow. Find a quiet place to take the practice test For the same reason you should take the test time-rich, you should find a quiet place to take it: recreating the official testing environment is key. Try to find a place you won't be interrupted for three hours: a library, your dining table, you name it. Have the following items by your side Before starting the test, make sure you have the following items: At least two no. 2 pencils (unless you take the test online) An ACT-acceptable calculator A snack and close access to water between sections Once the test is complete, celebrate! It's not easy to take a full-length ACT. You should be proud to set aside three hours to improve on this particularly important part of getting into college.
